Add a touch of European heat to your Christmas tables this December with Hotel Fort Canning's brand new addition to its Turkey Signature Creations series - Peri-Peri Turkey with Portuguese Paprika Roasted Potatoes. Rounding out this year's selections is the return of fan favourite, Tom Yum Turkey and Traditional Roasted Turkey.

Created by The Salon's Chef Nick Ng and inspired by Singapore's history of spice trading on Fort Canning Hill, let the Peri-Peri Turkey set your taste buds alight in a euphoric carnival of flavours. Each succulent turkey serves 6 to 8 persons and will be available for pre-orders from 2 November 2015 to 20 December 2015.

Heritage building

The iconic building was originally built in 1926, as the Administration Building of the British Far East Command HQ. The General-Officer-Commanding, Lieutenant-General Percival, had an office in this building. The building was occupied by the Japanese Military during the Occupation (1942-1945). After the war, the British Military took it back and used it as part of the British Military Administration. After independence in 1965, the building was taken over by the Singapore Armed Forces, and in 1970, the building was used by the Singapore Command & Staff College (SCSC). In 1976, the SCSC moved out of the building, and it remained unoccupied until 1995, where it housed Fort Canning Country Club.

In November 2002, the present owners took over the premises and launched a premium members-only town club called The Legends Fort Canning Park. The brand expansion of the company led to the conceptualization of a revolutionary luxury hospitality service. In July 2011, Hotel Fort Canning was introduced, along with the stunning Glass House.
